About the Authors and Contributors*

Malcolm L. Benge is a partner with the Washington, D.C., law firm of Zuckert, Scoutt & Rasenberger, L.L.P. He advises foreign and domestic clients on a wide range of aviation-related matters, including traffic rights, operating licenses, and regulatory compliance. His practice involves frequent participation in proceedings before the Department of Transportation and the Federal Aviation Administration. Mr. Benge also has extensive experience in the negotiation and documentation of airline commercial agreements and aircraft transactions. His expertise extends to the area of international trade. Mr. Benge holds a J.D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania and a B.A. from Wesleyan University.

Christian (Chris) F. Binnig is a partner with Mayer Brown LLP in Chicago, Illinois. He began practicing law in 1985 and has represented communications service providers and other clients as lead trial and appellate counsel in a wide variety of commercial and administrative litigation matters in court and regulatory proceedings throughout the country. Mr. Binnig has practiced before numerous federal appellate courts and is a member of the Northern District of Illinois trial bar. He is a member of the ABA’s Litigation and Public Utility, Communications, and Transportation Law Sections.

M. Stanford Blanton is a partner with Balch & Bingham, LLP, where he serves on the firm’s Executive Committee. Mr. Blanton specializes in energy law, particularly nuclear development, regulation, and policy. He represents the owner and operator of the country’s first new nuclear reactors in 30 years, handling licensing and contract concerns. He also represents nuclear power plant owners in claims against the United States arising out of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act. Mr. Blanton chairs the ABA Section of Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law’s Nuclear Energy Law Committee. He graduated from the University of Alabama School of Law.

Robert L. Brubaker is a partner in the Columbus, Ohio, office of Porter, Wright, Morris & Arthur. Mr. Brubaker has practiced in the field of environmental law since 1972. He was the 2011-2012 Chair of the American Bar Association Section of Public Utility, Communications, and Transportation Law; a Fellow of the American College of Environmental Lawyers; a member of the U.S. Department of Energy’s National Coal Council; and a Fellow of the American Bar Foundation. Mr. Brubaker is an adjunct professor at Capital University Law School and a 1972 graduate of the University of Chicago Law School.

* This section contains biographical information about the authors of and contributors to the articles and updates in this volume. It also contains similar information about the Infrastructure editors and the PUCAT chairs during the years covered by this volume.
Stephen J. Burdick is an associate in the Energy Practice at Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP. Mr. Burdick represents electric utilities and other clients in the nuclear industry on a variety of regulatory and litigation matters before the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, other state and federal agencies, and the federal courts. Mr. Burdick is actively involved in the licensing of new nuclear plants in the United States, including activities related to early site permit, combined license, and design certification applications. Mr. Burdick also has been involved in advising international clients on developing new nuclear programs and licensing new nuclear plants abroad.

Candice Castaneda is an associate with Paul Hastings LLP and a member of the Global Projects practice. Her practice focuses on energy-related projects, transactions, and controversies. Ms. Castaneda represents clients before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission as well as in transactions involving electric transmission and generation, mergers and acquisitions, financing, ratemaking, cogeneration, utility holding company, and gas and renewable energy projects.

Gerald A. Connell has been an antitrust lawyer for 51 years, 21 with the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Justice Department, 19 with Baker & Hostetler LLP, and the last 11 as a solo practitioner. He was lead counsel for the United States in the trial of the case against AT&T that led to the breakup of the Bell System in 1984. In 2005-2006 he was Chair of the Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law Section. He lives in Alexandria, Virginia, and his office is in Stamford, Connecticut.

Melody R. Cross (formerly Barron) is an associate in the finance practice group at Schiff Hardin LLP’s Chicago office. Melody has complementary practices in corporate finance and securities and futures regulation. Melody attended Vanderbilt University Law School, where she was Special Projects Editor of the Vanderbilt Law Review, and is as a member of the Order of the Coif. She graduated from Northwestern University with a B.S. in communication studies (argumentation and advocacy) and a double major in history.

The Honorable Richard D. Cudahy is a senior circuit judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. Prior to his appointment to the court, he was the resident partner in the Washington, D.C., office of the former Chicago firm of Isham, Lincoln and Beale.

Judge Cudahy received his B.S. from the United States Military Academy at West Point and his J.D. from Yale University Law School. He then served as law clerk to Charles E. Clark, Chief Judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals, Second Circuit, and in the Office of Legal Advisor, Department of State. He is a member of the Wisconsin, Illinois, District of Columbia, and Connecticut Bars.

Judge Cudahy was a member of the ABA’s Special Committee on Energy Law and has served on the Councils of the Public Utility Law, Administrative Law, and Natural Resources Sections. He is a member of the American Law Institute. He was a visiting professor in law at the University of Wisconsin, a Lecturer in Law at Marquette University, a Professorial Lecturer at the George Washington University National Law Center, and is now a Lecturer in Law at the DePaul University College of Law. He is the author of numerous scholarly articles, including one on deregulation in the Yale Journal on Regulation and one in the Journal of Air Law and Commerce.

Judge Cudahy is currently a member of the Advisory Committee to the Center for International Human Rights at Northwestern University and a member of the Foundation Advisory Board of the International Aviation Law Institute at DePaul University. He serves on the Visiting Committee of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago and is a member of the Judicial Advisory Board for the American Society of International Law. In 2010 he received the President’s Award from the Energy Bar Association for his lifetime work in the field of energy law.

Judge Cudahy was appointed by Chief Justice Rehnquist to the panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit for the purpose of appointing independent counsels and served four years from 1998 to 2002. He has received the honorary LL.D. degree from Ripon College, DePaul University, Wabash College, and Stetson University. He is also the recipient of the David Peck Award for 1989.

Mark C. Darrell is Senior Vice President, General Counsel, and Chief Compliance Officer of The Laclede Group, Inc., based in Saint Louis, Missouri. He holds a B.A. in political science from Syracuse University and a J.D. from Georgetown University Law Center. He is Vice Chair of the Gas and Corporate Governance Committees of the American Bar Association Section on Public Utility, Communications, and Transportation Law and is Vice Chair of the American Gas Association Legal Committee.

Patricia Dondanville is a partner with Reed Smith LLP. Patty concentrates her practice in corporate finance and transactional matters, often representing energy companies. Patty also represents energy companies with respect to legislative and regulatory policy at the increasingly important intersection between the energy industry and the financial markets. Patty has authored more than 25 substantive comment letters to the Commodity Futures Trading Commission and other financial regulators in connection with rulemakings under the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act.

Patty served as Co-chair for, and remains a member of, the Edison Electric Institute’s Contract Drafting Committee, which developed and maintains the EEI Master Power Purchase and Sale Agreement. The EEI Master Agreement was used as the basis for the ISDA North American Power Annex and is used as a template for many nonfinancial commodity trading contracts and purchase agreements. Patty is the 2012-2013 Chair of the American Bar Association’s Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law Section.

Kenneth B. Driver is a partner at Jones Day in Washington, D.C. His practice focuses on the representation of electric and natural gas utilities before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, state utility commissions, the U.S. Department of Transportation, the appellate courts, and the federal antitrust enforcement agencies. Ken is actively involved in the American Bar Association’s Section of Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law and has been chair of the section’s Electricity Committee. He also is a member of Energy Bar Association. Ken speaks before various groups on energy-related topics.
Chris Fortier served as the Young Lawyer Liaison to the Section’s Council from 2006 to 2012. He also served as chair the Young Lawyers Division’s Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law Committee from 2006 to 2008 and the Air and Space Law Committee from 2010 to 2012.

Ed Fortunato is currently the Managing Director of Fundamental Analysis at Constellation Energy. Ed has been with Exelon for 10 years. He has managed the proprietary trading book and the short-term analytics group at Exelon. He is also actively engaged with the OTC trading desks and portfolio management groups working to procure fuels effectively and manage power price exposure. Prior to Exelon he was a vice president of natural gas trading at Merrill Lynch and a senior energy trader at Edison Mission Energy. He has an M.B.A. with high honors in finance from Boston University and a B.B.A. from Baruch College.

Dorothy Black Franzoni is a member of Sutherland’s Energy and Environmental Practice Group and Chair of Sutherland’s Renewable and Alternative Energy Team. She is Chair of the Electricity Committee of the ABA Section of Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law. She focuses her practice on commercial transactions, project development, and finance transactions in the electric industry, including nuclear, coal, natural gas, and renewable energy projects. Her experience includes power purchase and sale arrangements, power plant joint-ownership arrangements, project development for electric generating plants, power scheduling and bulk system operations matters, federal loan and loan guarantee programs, secured and unsecured loan arrangements, tax-advantaged leasing transactions, and publicly issued and privately placed debt financings.

Scott Fulton is General Counsel for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). Fulton’s extensive career in environmental policy and law began in 1982, when he served as an environmental prosecutor and Assistant Chief in the Department of Justice, Environment and Natural Resources Division, where he contributed to the development of many of the liability principles that underpin the United States’ environmental protection program. From 1990 to 1995, Fulton held leadership positions in EPA’s enforcement program, first as Director of Civil Enforcement and subsequently as Principal Deputy Assistant Administrator in OECA. From 1995 to 1999 he served as EPA’s Principal Deputy General Counsel, and from 1999 to 2007 as a judge on EPA’s Environmental Appeals Board. Before being nominated as General Counsel, Fulton served as Deputy Assistant and Acting Assistant Administrator in EPA’s Office of International Affairs.

Thomas P. Gadsden is a partner in Morgan, Lewis & Bockius’s Energy Practice, resident in the firm’s Philadelphia office. Mr. Gadsden’s work focuses on public utility regulation, administrative law, and energy litigation. Mr. Gadsden has represented electric, natural gas, water, wastewater, and steam heat clients in a wide array of regulatory, litigation, and transactional matters before federal and state commissions and courts. Mr. Gadsden is a past chair of the American Bar Association’s Section of Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law and of the Pennsylvania Bar Association’s Public Utility Law Section. He is a graduate of Yale University and the Georgetown University Law Center and, since 1991, has been recognized by The Best Lawyers in America as one of the country’s leading energy lawyers.

Kathryn J. Gainey is of counsel in the Washington office of Steptoe & Johnson LLP, where she is a member of the firm’s Transportation Group. Ms. Gainey’s practice concentrates on transportation regulatory and litigation matters, as well as complex civil and appellate cases. In the transportation arena, Ms. Gainey provides regulatory and litigation advice to clients relating to surface transportation matters, including transportation of hazardous materials. Ms. Gainey has represented clients in railroad regulatory disputes before the Surface Transportation Board (STB), including unreasonable rule or practice cases, rate cases, rulemakings, and other proceedings. She represents clients in cases involving the interpretation of federal statutes and regulations, preemption, judicial review of administrative action, jurisdictional issues, and challenges to legislation in state and federal courts and before arbitration panels.

Eric B. Gallon is a senior attorney at Porter Wright whose practice encompasses public utility and environmental law as well as corporate litigation. He is a 1999 graduate of the University of Chicago Law School and, since 2007, a contributor to the annual and quarterly reports of the ABA Section of Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law.

Caileen N. Gamache is an associate in the Washington, D.C., office of White & Case LLP. As a member of her firm’s Energy, Infrastructure and Project Finance Group, Ms. Gamache focuses on energy regulatory, compliance, and enforcement matters under the Federal Power Act, the Public Utility Regulatory Act, and the Natural Gas Act. Ms. Gamache routinely represents clients before such agencies as the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the North American Electric Reliability Corporation, and various state public utility commissions, and she also frequently advises clients with respect to transactional matters related to the development and operations of both renewable and conventional fossil-fuel facilities.

William A. Graham, Jr. is an associate with Balch & Bingham, LLP, and works in the firm’s Energy Practice Group. Mr. Graham represents owners and operators of electric transmission and distribution facilities on regulatory compliance issues before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and the Federal Court of Appeals. He also represents and advises clients on federal and state electric utility issues, including open-access transmission tariff issues and transmission-to-generation interconnection arrangements. He graduated from the Vanderbilt University School of Law.

Jay M. Gutierrez is a partner in the Energy Practice at Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP. For more than 30 years, Mr. Gutierrez’s practice has focused on representing companies and governments in a variety of matters involving the ownership, operation, and regulation of nuclear power plants. These representations have involved coordination of such diverse issues as developing nuclear regulatory programs; operating plant performance and related management issues; responding to government investigations; counseling on new plant initiatives in the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe, and the Middle East; and addressing corporate governance and co-owner considerations.

David R. Hardy is a tax partner in the New York office of Osler, Hoskin and Harcourt. In addition to having previously served as chair of the Taxation and Accounting Committee of the ABA PUCAT, Mr. Hardy has been the chair of the Tax Committee of the International Bar Association (2006 and 2007), the president of the International Tax Institute in New York (2009, 2010, and 2011), and a member of the New York State Bar Tax Section’s Executive Committee (2002 to date). His practice includes the taxation of energy corporations in cross-border acquisitions and financings.

Carrie J. Hightman is Executive Vice President and Chief Legal Officer, NiSource Inc., a $7.2 billion Fortune 400 energy delivery holding company, and reports to the CEO. She is responsible for legal, compliance, environmental, safety, sustainability, and a real estate portfolio. At NiSource, Hightman led resolution of a $450 million class action and established an award-winning ethics program, a sustainability program, and a women’s leadership program. She is chair of the Illinois State Universities Retirement System Board, a $14 billion pension system, and the Illinois Board of Higher Education, a state oversight board. She was President, AT&T Illinois, responsible for all regulatory and legislative matters, external affairs, and public relations; partner and Energy, Telecommunications and Public Utilities practice group leader at Schiff Hardin LLP, a national law firm; staff counsel, Florida Public Service Commission; and associate counsel, Florida Office of Public Counsel. She is a 1979 graduate of the University of Illinois (B.A.) and a 1982 graduate of Florida State University (J.D.).

Allen A. Kacenjar, Jr. is a principal at Squire Sanders in Cleveland. His practice encompasses all areas of environmental law, with a particular emphasis on Clean Air Act (CAA) regulatory advocacy. This includes efforts to advance industry interests on numerous rules, including National Ambient Air Quality Standards, Clean Air Interstate Rule, Clean Air Mercury Rule, Utility MACT, Boiler MACT, Integrated Iron and Steel MACT, and Regional Haze Rule standards. Those efforts include formal and informal rulemaking advocacy as well as appeals before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit. Mr. Kacenjar is also highly active on greenhouse gas (GHG) issues, including the development of comprehensive comments on all EPA rules, crafting and implementing numerous GHG monitoring plans, and the assessment of GHG BACT and related permitting implications.

Alexandra D. Konieczny is a member of Sutherland's Energy and Environmental Practice Group. Her practice is focused on energy- and commodity-related projects, transactions, and controversies, including issues related to compliance with rules and regulations. Alexandra primarily advises clients on Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, North American Electric Reliability Corporation, and California RPS compliance issues. Alexandra graduated from Emory University School of Law (J.D.) in 2008 and from Emory University (B.A.) in 2005.

D. Alan Lindsey is Assistant General Counsel for UniversalPegasus International, Inc. UniversalPegasus provides engineering, survey, inspection, and construction management services for onshore oil and gas production, midstream, and pipeline projects; offshore subsea and platform projects; and power transmission. Prior to joining UniversalPegasus, Mr. Lindsey was an associate in the Houston office of Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, LLP. His practice focused primarily on environmental matters, including the Clean Air Act and the regulation of greenhouse gases. Mr. Lindsey graduated from the University of Houston Law Center in 2005 and the University of Missouri at Columbia in 1999.
About the Authors and Contributors

Theodore (Ted) A. Livingston joined Mayer Brown LLP in 1973 and became a partner in 1980. He is a trial and appellate lawyer working primarily on commercial and regulatory-related litigation involving the communications industry. He has served as lead trial counsel for AT&T before state regulatory commissions and federal and state trial courts throughout the country. He has argued numerous cases in the federal courts of appeal. Ted has litigated antitrust, audit malpractice, and securities fraud cases, contract disputes, business torts, and consumer class actions—trying to decision several dozen cases, including major federal court jury trials.

J. Bruce McDonald is a partner in Jones Day’s antitrust practice in Washington, D.C., and Houston, Texas. He represents clients in antitrust government investigations and enforcement actions, merger reviews, and antitrust private litigation. From 2003 to 2007, he served as deputy assistant attorney general in the Department of Justice’s Antitrust Division, where he was responsible for antitrust enforcement in energy, transportation, telecommunications, and other regulated industries. He was appointed to the Electric Energy Competition Task Force created by Congress and also was part of the U.S. delegation that negotiated the airline “open skies” agreement between the United States and the European Union.

Michael D. McNeely, Law Offices of Michael D. McNeely, has been an antitrust lawyer for 36 years. Before entering private practice, Mr. McNeely served for 12 years as an assistant director of the FTC’s Bureau of Competition, where he led a division responsible for antitrust enforcement in various business sectors, including pharmaceuticals and health care. Prior to his time at the FTC, Mr. McNeely was a trial attorney in the Antitrust Division, where his responsibilities included a lead role in the litigation that led to the AT&T breakup, policy work in the Division’s Evaluation Section, and merger litigation.

Richard A. Meserve is a senior of counsel at Covington & Burling LLP and is President of the Carnegie Institution for Science. He was Chairman of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission from 1999 to 2003.

Andrew Vahid Moshirnia received his J.D. from Harvard Law School and his Ph.D. in educational technology from the University of Kansas. His research interests include intellectual property, cyberlaw, communications, and generative technologies. He has published pieces in legal and instructional technology journals on a variety of topics, including the plain view doctrine in digital searches, user-modified video games, and academic wiki use. He occasionally blogs for Citizen Media Law Project and Just Enrichment.
Michael L. O’Neill (J.D. expected May 2013) is a student at The Catholic University of America Columbus School of Law. From 2007 to 2012, he served as an energy policy analyst for Sutherland’s Energy & Environmental Group. Before joining Sutherland, he served as a research assistant for Mike Gapes, MP, in the British House of Commons and as an intern for Representative Stephanie Tubbs Jones in the U.S. House. He was awarded a B.A. by the University of Notre Dame in 2006.

Charles A, Patrizia is a partner at Paul Hastings, LLP. He has over 30 years of experience in regulatory and trial proceedings, with a concentration in complex matters and matters relating to project development and construction, energy and the environment, and regulation of chemicals and pharmaceuticals. He has an active counseling and litigation practice in project construction and energy and environment, as well as counseling corporations and boards on compliance matters and governance issues in relation to policies and requirements of regulatory agencies.

T. Michael Payne recently retired from AT&T Inc. During his tenure with AT&T, he served as senior vice president and general counsel for AT&T Corp., Ameritech, Pacific Telesis, Southwestern Bell Telephone, SBC International, and Southwestern Bell Mobile Systems. Payne received his J.D., M.A., and B.A. degrees from St. Louis University. Payne is a past chair (2008-2009) of the American Bar Association Section of Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law. He currently serves as vice chair of the Nominating Committee, the Program and CLE Meetings Committee, and the Communications, Cable and Internet Committee in that same section. Payne is a member of the American, Arkansas, California, Illinois, Missouri, and Texas Bar Associations and a fellow of the American Bar Foundation.

John C. Peirce is a partner in the Washington, D.C., office of Bryan Cave, LLP. His practice encompasses antitrust, unfair trade practices, and complex commercial litigation and arbitration, with particular emphasis on regulated industries. He has been active in the Council Group of the Section of Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law for over 10 years and currently serves as Chair of the Antitrust Committee and as a Vice-Chair of the ADR Committee.

Martha Groves Pugh is counsel in the law firm of McDermott Will & Emery LLP and is based in its Washington, D.C., office. Martha focuses her practice on federal income tax issues, with a particular emphasis on the nuclear and energy industries. Martha has had extensive experience with various tax credits, including renewable energy incentives, such as production tax credits for wind, biomass, and geothermal projects and investment tax credits related to solar projects. Martha has been heavily involved in developing opportunities for clients related to the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009, including the Section 1603 Grant Program.

Linda L. Randell is Senior Vice President, General Counsel, and Chief Compliance Officer of UIL Holdings Corporation, which owns an electric utility and three gas utilities. Prior to joining UIL, Ms. Randell was a senior partner at the law firm of Wiggin and Dana LLP, where she was chair of the Utilities and Regulated Industries Practice Group. Ms. Randell received an A.B. from the University of Michigan magna
Ms. Randell received her J.D. from the Yale Law School, where she was an editor of The Yale Law Journal. Ms. Randell is a past chair of the American Bar Association Section of Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law, for which she presently chairs the Book Board. She is a past chair of the Connecticut Bar Association Antitrust Section. Ms. Randell is a member of the American Bar Association Standing Committee on Publishing Oversight. She is a member of the Board of Directors of The Yale Law Journal Company, Inc.

John J. Reilly is a commercial trial lawyer and has served as lead counsel in federal trial and appellate litigation throughout the United States involving environmental claims, antitrust, price-fixing conspiracies, monopoly, commercial and real estate disputes, RICO actions, and class actions, as well as arbitrations in both U.S. and global forums. In addition, John has been an arbitrator and counsel in numerous arbitrations involving commercial disputes, international disputes, and New York Stock Exchange proceedings, including several FINRA arbitrations of claims relating to securities and other investments. He has also advised and counseled clients regarding joint venture arrangements in several industries, including airline and shipping, and with respect to resale price maintenance programs, as well as in grand jury antitrust investigations into the shipping industry. John served as a captain in the United States Marine Corps from 1967 to 1971, with a tour of duty in the Republic of Vietnam. He serves as co-chair of the Maritime Committee of the Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law Section of the American Bar Association and as a director of The Ireland-U.S. Council for Commerce & Industry, Inc. John is a member of the American Bar Association Section of Litigation and former chair of the New York County Lawyers’ Association Committee on Admiralty and Maritime Law.

Margaret E. Rice is senior counsel for NiSource Inc., a Fortune 400 energy company. Maggie’s practice focuses on environmental law, including environmental litigation and policy. Before joining NiSource, Maggie served as Deputy Commissioner of the City of Chicago’s Department of Environment. Her primary responsibility in that position was managing the city’s environmental enforcement and permitting programs. Prior to this, Maggie practiced environmental law and litigation in private practice and worked for the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. Maggie earned her J.D. cum laude from Northwestern University School of Law and her B.A. with distinction from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Katrina Robson is counsel in the Washington, D.C., office of O’Melveny & Myers LLP, and a member of the firm’s Class Action, Mass Torts, and Antitrust and Competition practice groups. Katrina has represented clients in litigation and before regulatory agencies in antitrust, merger, intellectual property, consumer protection, and general commercial matters. She has co-authored articles appearing in various antitrust publications, including International Antitrust Law & Policy: Fordham Competition Law 2009, and contributed to the 2012 update to Consumer Protection Law Developments.
Millicent W. Ronnlund is an associate with Balch & Bingham, LLP, and a member of the Firm’s Nuclear Energy, Energy, and Energy Litigation sections. She has worked on Early Site Permit and Combined License proceedings before the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for nuclear power plant owners and operators. Mrs. Ronnlund also represents clients on nuclear regulatory compliance issues and on commercial matters related to the construction and operation of nuclear power plants. She graduated from the University of Alabama School of Law.

John W. Rowe is Chairman Emeritus of Chicago-based Exelon Corporation, an electric utility serving Chicago, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. He led Exelon from its formation in 2000 through the completion of its acquisition of Constellation Energy in 2012. Rowe previously held chief executive officer positions at the New England Electric System and Central Maine Power Company, served as general counsel of Consolidated Rail Corporation, and was a partner in the law firm of Isham, Lincoln & Beale. Rowe is the past chairman of the Nuclear Energy Institute and the Edison Electric Institute. He is the lead independent director of the Northern Trust Company and a member of the board of directors of The Allstate Corporation and SunCoke Energy. Rowe serves as chairman of the Illinois Institute of Technology, New Schools for Chicago, and the Field Museum, and as president of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation.

Rowe holds undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Wisconsin, where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and the Order of the Coif. He has also received that university’s Distinguished Alumni Award. Rowe holds honorary doctorates from the University of Wisconsin, DePaul University, Illinois Institute of Technology, Drexel University, University of Massachusetts-Dartmouth, Bryant College, Thomas College, and Dominican University.

Linda S. Stein is a partner in the Washington office of Steptoe & Johnson LLP, where she is a member of the firm’s Transportation Group. Ms. Stein’s practice has focused on civil litigation, primarily involving railroad contract disputes and oil regulatory disputes. These disputes have been brought in various forums, including state and federal trial courts, as well as arbitration proceedings. Ms. Stein has represented railroads in railroad regulatory proceedings before the Surface Transportation Board, including rail rate reasonableness proceedings, unreasonable rule or practice proceedings, merger proceedings, railroad line construction and crossing proceedings, and rulemaking proceedings. Some of this work has involved an analysis of environmental impacts under the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). Her practice has also included numerous appellate court proceedings involving the interpretation of statutory provisions and constitutional issues.

Lisa Wing Stone is an attorney with VLP Law Group LLP, a geographically distributed “virtual” law firm that was founded in 2008. Prior to joining VLP, Lisa was a counsel in O’Melveny & Myers’s Washington, D.C., and Los Angeles offices. With no central office, VLP relies on its technology platform to collaborate and to operate with a small, highly specialized staff. At VLP Lisa continues to specialize in clean energy and environmental law. She regularly advises companies on DOE-related matters, including several federally funded projects.
About the Authors and Contributors

Leticia Tavares is a second-year law student (class of 2014) at Roger Williams University School of Law in Bristol, Rhode Island. Prior to attending Roger Williams, Leticia obtained her bachelor’s degree from the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth. At Roger Williams, Leticia is a member of the Roger Williams University Law Review, the Moot Court Board, and the Honors Program. She is also the Vice President of the Multicultural Law Student Association and Director of Events for the Tax and Business Law Society. In the summer of 2012 Leticia was the National Grid–Robinson & Cole summer fellow. During this fellowship, Leticia drafted memoranda and motions to the Rhode Island Public Utilities Commission and Energy Facility Siting Board. She also gained legal experience in the areas of business, contract, subrogation, and affordable housing.

Dynda A. Thomas is a partner with Squire Sanders (US) LLP in Cleveland, Ohio. She is the deputy practice leader of Squire Sanders’ Corporate Transactions, Finance & Governance Practice Group and has extensive experience in the areas of mergers and acquisitions and project finance. She focuses her practice primarily in the energy, mining, and metals industries. Dynda also leads the firm’s Conflict Minerals team and works with clients as they develop and implement conflict minerals compliance and reporting programs. She is actively involved in the American Bar Association’s Section of Public Utility, Communications and Transportation Law for which she has served as Co-Editor of Infrastructure, Program Chair, and is currently serving as Budget Officer. Dynda is listed in the 2011 and 2012 editions of The Legal 500 US for her mergers and acquisition practice and has been recognized as an Ohio Super Lawyer in Law & Politics magazine continuously since 2007.

Michael J. Thompson is a shareholder with the firm of Wright & Talisman, P.C., in Washington, D.C. In his 30 years of practice, he has advised and represented natural gas pipelines, distributors, energy marketers, electric utilities, RTOs, ISOs, municipalities, cooperatives, energy consumers, and landowners in an array of regulatory and commercial matters, including managing, litigating and settling all types of rate, tariff, rulemaking, and complaint proceedings before the FERC and state utility regulatory agencies, and related appellate proceedings. He has been recognized in Chambers USA: America’s Leading Lawyers for Business since 2004.

Carine M. Williams is an associate in the New York office of Squire Sanders. Carine’s practice focuses on representing parties and amici in federal and state appellate courts, in the U.S. Supreme Court, and in federal trial-level matters involving complex constitutional questions and commercial transactions. She is a member of the firm’s Public Service Initiative, and a member of the firm’s commercial litigation and appellate and Supreme Court litigation practice teams. Besides federal civil rights and habeas law, she advises clients on questions involving federal civil procedure and federal jurisdiction, as well as with regulatory schemes involving banking, intellectual property, and natural resources. Carine graduated from Yale Law School in 2006.

Jonathan B. Wilson is a partner in the Atlanta, Georgia, law firm of Taylor English Duma LLP and the founding chair of the Renewable Energy Committee of the ABA's Public Utility Section. Wilson advises developers and investors on securities and financing transactions involving renewable energy, including biomass, wind, solar, and alternative fuels. Mr. Wilson was graduated Phi Beta Kappa from the College of William and Mary and earned his J.D. from the George Washington University.

Casey Wren is a partner in the Austin, Texas, firm of Duggins Wren Mann & Romero, LLP. His practice, which has spanned over 30 years, has predominantly focused on infrastructure utilities with significant representations of major electric, natural gas, and telecom utilities in a wide variety of complex commercial, corporate, financial, and regulatory matters. Besides the American Bar Association and PUCAT, for which he has served as council representative and chair of the Electricity Committee, Mr. Wren’s résumé includes a number of professional and legal affiliations. Additionally, he is a Fellow of the American Bar Foundation. Mr. Wren graduated with honors in 1979 from the University of Texas School of Law.