This program will discuss the contours of the dynamic field of privacy and information security law. An overview of this practice area, as well as discussion of career paths in the field, will be highlighted for law students through this program. Familiarity with privacy and information security law will be helpful to students interested in a wide-range of career paths beyond law school. The presentations will foster interaction between the ABA Privacy and Information Security Committee and soon-to-be lawyers interested in the field, and provide an excellent opportunity to reach out to the profession's newest members.
