

Michelle Mauthe Harvey, C '76 (Project Manager, Corporate Partnerships) co-leads Environmental Defense Fund's on-site partnership with Wal-Mart in Bentonville, AR advancing sustainable business practices throughout their operations and supply chain. Michelle's areas of responsibility include alternative energy; chemicals; human and environment interactions; sustainable agriculture and forestry; life cycle inventory and analysis; and water. She received her MBA from Duke University and her B.S. Forestry from the University of the South.

Prior to joining EDF, Michelle ran a consulting business focused on facilitation, strategic planning, and project management in sustainable forestry and agriculture. Previous employers include the Society of American Foresters; National Environmental Education Foundation; Management Institute for Environment and Business; Duke University School of the Environment; and International Paper Company. Michelle is on the external advisory boards of the University of Michigan Graham Environmental Sustainability Institute and the American Forest Foundation Center for Environmental Learning; she previously served on the US CDC National Center for Environmental Health Advisory Council and the Sustainable Forestry Initiative Verifiers Accreditation Subcommittee.

Environmental Defense Fund is a leading national nonprofit organization, representing more than 700,000 members. Since 1967, EDF has linked science, economics, law and innovative private-sector partnerships to create breakthrough solutions to the most serious environmental problems. EDF is dedicated to protecting the environmental rights of all people, including future generations. Among these rights are access to clean air and water, healthy and nourishing food, and flourishing ecosystems. Guided by science, EDF evaluates environmental problems and works to create and advocate solutions that win lasting political, economic and social support because they are nonpartisan, cost-efficient and fair.