Youngjin Jung is a partner at Kim & Chang who primarily practises in the areas of antitrust, international trade and international arbitration. He has extensive experience in the IT, telecoms, semiconductor, aviation and chemical industries. His experience includes representation in abuse of market dominant cases of Microsoft/Intel/Qualcomm, and in major international cartel cases in many key industry sectors.

Dr Jung was a visiting professor at Duke Law School and an adjunct professor at Georgetown Law School. He was a legal adviser for the Korea-US/Korea-EU Free Trade Agreement (FTA) as a member of the cartel advisory board of the Korea Fair Trade Commission and of the Korea Communication Commission. Previous to this, Dr Jung was a professorial fellow at the Institute for International Economic Law in Washington, DC. He has participated as a member of the Korean delegation in the OECD competition committee and the WTO working party on interactions between trade and competition, and has served as non-governmental advisor (NGA) for the International Competition Network.

He is vice chair of the ABA international antitrust committee, and executive member of the IBA trade and customs committee. Dr Jung has authored numerous articles on international trade and competition law, including ABA treatises entitled 'Competition Laws outside the United States' and 'Anti-Cartel Enforcement Worldwide' (Cambridge University Press, 2009).

He was consistently listed in The International Who's Who of Competition Lawyers and The International Who's Who of Business Lawyers and as a leading expert in competition law by Euromoney and Chambers Asia. He has also been consistently listed as a leading lawyer in WTO and international trade in Chambers Global, Euromoney publications and The International Who's Who of Trade & Customs Lawyers.
