

Cecile Kohrs Lindell, Esq., is a journalist and lawyer specializing in antitrust law, covering policy, legislation and litigation for THE DEAL. She has spoken at Washington, DC and global antitrust events about how to interact with journalists and lawyers regarding competition law and related matters. She was a lawyer at the Federal Trade Commission where she specialized in health law policy. She is a member of the Virginia Bar, and received her J.D. from George Mason University School of Law (2003) and her B.A. (Journalism) from San Diego State University (1989). She was part of an all-women record-setting skydiving event in 2002, and has run three marathons.