Robert Heslett
The Law Society of England and Wales

Practice Areas

Legal specialisms cover transport licensing, negligence of professionals including solicitors, accountants, surveyors and architects.

Other

Robert Heslett is the current President of the Law Society of England and Wales. He is also a Consultant with Beachcroft LLP having served as Managing Partner from 1999 until 2005 and before that as Senior and Managing Partner of Wansbroughs Willey Hargrave, 1989-99.

To 2005 and over a period of sixteen years Bob with colleagues, was responsible for the rapid development of Beachcroft leading to it now being recognised as one of the UK’s leading National commercial law firm with expanding international interests including India.

Over the past two years he has been instrumental in developing leading-edge thinking about the regulation of those who provide legal services in England & Wales. His aim is to ensure the future regulatory system should be targeted, proportionate and outcomes focused and operated by an expert and empathetic regulator.