

Director's & Officer's Strategies for Turbulent Times: Carriers, Coverages & Costs for Companies in Transition

TUESDAY, September 28, 2010 • 2:00 P.M. - 3:30 P.M. Eastern

A 90-MINUTE TIPS TELECONFERENCE

Program Description:

Management liability and various forms of D&O coverage are critical issues and of great concern and focus for executives and directors of companies going through a transition. Whether due to a merger or acquisition, restructuring, or bankruptcy, there are unique challenges and issues regarding providing the most appropriate and cost effective coverage for all parties concerned. In addition, current upheaval in the management liability underwriting marketplace increases the complexities of these decisions.

During this teleconference experienced experts with practical experience in managing management liability issues during corporate transition will discuss lessons learned and best practices for avoiding potential pitfalls and providing your clients with the cost effective alternatives in the current marketplace.

You Will Learn How To:

1. Provide practical advice for risk managers, brokers and attorneys dealing with management liability issues for companies going through significant change.
2. Identify best practices and real life examples of ways to improve coverage and reduce costs including discussing program design and options.
3. Identify other resources for those interested in the topic discussed.
4. Discuss the issues behind the recent headlines and real cases relating to coverage application, claims, and market conditions.
